Rabbi A. E. Halpern (inset) will be at the American Jewish Hour National Founder's Dinner-Dance at the Chase Hotel next Sunday to honor Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Molasky for their unselfish work for the radio program.

JEWISH STAR TO COVER SOUTHERN ILLINOIS

The Greater St. Louis Jewish Star is enlarging its circulation to include the Southern Illinois area. Jewish residents of this region are invited to forward their names and addresses to the Jewish Star, 6370 Delmar Blvd., for weekly mailing of the Star free of charge.

BJE Dinner Cancelled

The Board of Jewish Education will not hold their annual dinner on December 19 as announced previously. Tentative plans are made for February 27, 1955.

State Department Brushes Off Local Histadrut Protest On Arms To Arabs

Missouri Congressmen Respond Favorably To Resolution.

"The Department of State brushed us off with generalities and ready releases in response to our appeal to stop furnishing arms to Arabs," explained Jack Mitchell, executive director of the St. Louis Histadrut. This contention was substantiated by an exchange of letters between Victor Packman on behalf of the St. Louis Histadrut and the Department of State and Congressmen which were released exclusively to the Jewish Star by Jack Mitchell.

Express Concern Over Arming

Late in October Histadrut passed a resolution expressing its concern over the arming of the Arab states. The resolution called upon the American Government to "abandon the undertaking to furnish any Arab state with arms unless: Said State enters into a peace negotiations with Israel as evidence of pacific intentions, and unless it abandons its boycott and blockade of Israel; and in the case of Egypt, its interference with Israel shipping through the Suez Canal."

Quote Eisenhower

A Department of State official replied to a letter by Victor Packman on behalf of Histadrut, addressed to Secretary Dulles, with a quotation by President Eisenhower from an address at the Histadrut centenary dinner.

"By firm friendship toward Israel and all other nations in that area, we shall continue to contribute to the peace of the world," Eisenhower was quoted, "For I assure you that in helping to strengthen the security of the entire Near East, we shall make sure that any arms we provide are devoted to that purpose, not to creating local imbalances which could be used for intimidation or aggressions against any neighboring nation."

Hennings Stresses Sympathy With Israel

Rep. Frank M. Karsten promised to see to it that the State Dept. will give a proper answer to the Histadrut resolution. Rep. Thomas E. Curtis assured Packman "the views of your organization (Histadrut) will be kept in mind."

Sen. Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., stressed his sympathy with the aims and aspirations of Israel. "I am strongly opposed to the United States taking any step which would precipitate an attack upon Israel by the Arab people," Hennings stated.

Rabbi B. Klausner Named Co-Rabbi

Rabbi Bertram Klausner, Associate Rabbi of B'nai El Temple for the past year, has been named Co-Rabbi of the Temple and has been elevated to that position at a special service on Friday evening.

After services Rabbi and Mrs. Julian H. Miller were hosts at a reception honoring Rabbi and Mrs. Klausner.

Rabbi Klausner, a graduate of New York University and Hebrew Union College, was with Hillel Foundation until World War II. He was the third Jewish chaplain to arrive overseas, and was separated from service with the rank of Lt. Colonel, the highest rank accorded any Jewish chaplain in World War II.

Serving in England for 32 months, Rabbi Klausner was senior Jewish chaplain of the 8th Air Force in charge of the religious welfare of all Jewish personnel in the British Isles and continent.

After six years as Rabbi of Beth Israel Congregation in Austin, Texas, Rabbi Klausner assumed his present position in St. Louis, Sept. 1953.

He is chaplain of the Missouri Department of the Jewish War Veterans; Jewish chaplain for Cochran Veteran Hospital, and secretary of the St. Louis Rabbinical Association.

He is author of "I Am the Talmud," a series of articles published in Liberal Judaism (forerunner of American Judaism), and "Family Worship Services for American and Jewish Holidays," which were reviewed in the Jewish Teacher several months ago. Martin A. Rosenberg is president of B'nai El congregation.

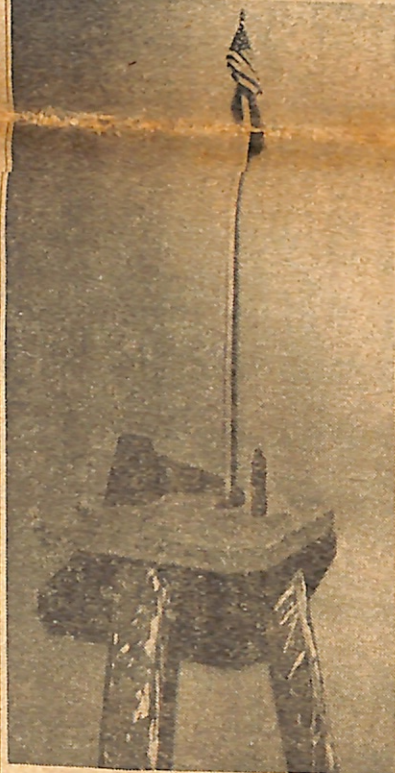

Cairo Tercentenary Event To Feature Report Of First Jewish Settlers

Lester Kahn, chairman of the Cairo Tercentenary Committee, will present a report of the first Jewish settlers in Cairo, at the Tercentenary celebration, Thursday, December 9.

Kahn bases his report upon his personal research of Cairo records. Books will be presented to the public library and to the high school.

The Cairo Tercentenary Committee consists of Mrs. Ben Fishel, Mrs. Abe Solomon, Mrs. Hirschel Eichhorn, Mrs. Hyman Goldstein, Mrs. Lester Kahn, and Sam Golden.

Jewish Tercentenary Landmark To Be Erected In Forest Park

Proposed flagpole for Forest Park site.

The American Jewish Tercentenary Committee's plan for the erection of a flagpole and base as a landmark in St. Louis in commemoration of the Tercentenary has been approved by the Municipal Art Commission.

Plans for the marker had been made six months ago and were worked out in conferences with Mayor Raymond R. Tucker, the Director of Public Welfare and the Municipal Art Commission. The approximate site is in the Forest Park vicinity of Kingshighway and Lindell.

The committee for the flagpole consists of S. S. Adelman, H. M. Edison, Howard Baer, Sidney Baer and Rabbi Isserman.

The flagpole, designed by Carl Mose, will be 32 feet, its base six and one-half feet in height. Details are now being worked out and probably will not be complete until next fall. The base will be out of Indiana limestone.

JDC Celebrates 40 Years Of Service

Armand Perez, 12 years old, has gone home again to see his father and six brothers and sisters in Casablanca, Morocco. It's been five months since he's seen them, although Armand has been away from home only four months. During the first of the five months, he couldn't really see his family: he was blind.

Before Armand could regain his sight, he flew from Casablanca to Paris, underwent three operations on both his eyes, spent three months in a French hospital and several weeks in a children's colony outside Paris.

Armand benefited from the work by the OSE medical service, supported by the Joint Distribution Committee. He will be able to grow up as a healthy, confident adult, aware that help, when necessary, is immediately forthcoming, a knowledge which was denied to past generations of poor North African Jews—even to Armand's father, an illiterate dealer in old clothes.

The JDC was founded in 1914 as a result of the emergencies faced by the Jewry of Western Jewry and Palestine in World War I. Its initial effort was to save from actual starvation the 60,000 Jews in Palestine, then under Turkish jurisdiction.

The organization was born of the fund-raising efforts of three committees for sufferers of world War I: The Central Committee for the Relief of Jews, organized by the Union of Orthodox Congregations; the American Jewish Relief Committee, made up of organizations called together by the American Jewish Committee; and the People's Relief Committee, made up of labor groups.

Developments following the Russian Revolution made it necessary for the Joint Distribution Committee to set up separate organizations to help Russian Jews. They won the cooperation of the Soviet Union. Herbert Hoover called the activities of these divisions one of the most amazing feats of "human engineering" in modern history.

It is perhaps not too widely known that the JDC was preparing for an orderly liquidation of its activities when the advent of Hitler in 1932 brought the agency its greatest responsibilities. In 1937 JDC gave assistance to one-third of the Jews in Germany.

Career Problems In Israel Topic Of Address

A talk, illustrated with color slides, "Careers in Israel" will be given by Yehuda Levine, director of the Professional and Technical Workers' Aliyah (PATWA), at Washington University, Eads Hall 118, at 12:00 noon Tuesday, Dec. 7. Levine, an American, returned recently from Israel, where he was associate director of the Section for Newcomers From Anglo-Saxon Countries, a special department of the Jewish Agency.

Professionals and technicians are urgently needed, said Mr. Levine, but "they should know beforehand of some of the problems likely to confront them on arrival in Israel.

Private interviews will be arranged after the lecture.

Virtually the only life-line of direct aid to the ghetto populations in Nazi Europe came from the JDC. Activities were continued throughout most of the war.

Approximately one-half of the JDC's 1954 budget was spent on Malben, the program established in 1949 for the care of the aged, ill and handicapped immigrants in Israel. In its forty-year history JDC has aided more than 3,500,000 Jews in 60 countries of the world.

New York Governor-elect Averell Harriman will be a featured speaker at the Founder's Dinner to be held in conjunction with the Fortieth Annual Meeting in New York.

I. E. GOLDSTEIN TO CONTINUE ON NATIONAL BOARD

I. E. Goldstein will continue on the Board of Directors of the Council of Jewish Federations and Welfare Funds during 1955, it was announced by Julian Freeman of Indianapolis, Ind., CJFWF president.

Goldstein was president of the Jewish Federation of St. Louis from 1951 through 1953. He is a life Board member of the Federation, and in 1946 and 1948 he was Campaign General Chairman of the St. Louis Jewish Welfare Fund Campaign.

He is past president of the Jewish Orthodox old Folks Home; past president of the Children's Research Foundation; and past president of United Hebrew Temple. He is a member of the Consultative Board of the Jewish Star.

President of the United Lumber Company, Goldstein is also chairman of the Board of the United Bank & Trust Company. He resides with his wife at 738 South Hanley Rd.

Histradrut

Unsatisfied with the response to the Histradrut resolution, Victor Packman forwarded a new communication to the Department of State and Missouri Congressmen in which he was sharply critical of the "generalities enunciated by the President..." He wrote: "Words will evaporate when trouble hits, but the horrible reality of destruction by arms will remain as lives of the innocents are shattered."

"For America to stimulate an arms' race," continued the letter, "is as morally reprehensible as for one to encourage dope addiction. If our international policy is not based upon moral considerations, in which humanitarian objectives are the dominant factors, the future is indeed grim for mankind."

So far he has received no reply on his second letter.

"And You Shall Teach Them Diligently To Your Children"

Rabbi Morgansteren Pursues Studies As Others Have Done For 1700 Years.

A strong man with enduring energy, moving about his tasks swiftly and surely is Reb. Avrom Morgansteren. His large, dark eyes are set in an angular face — a kindly, religious countenance. He wears an ancient derby, and a blue coat now faded.

Every morning he rises at 6:00 o'clock. He starts the fire in the kitchen, warms himself for a moment, and reads. Soon he hurries downstairs and leaves the house.

As he enters the well-lighted synagogue, Rabbi Morgansteren is greeted by the other worshippers who await him. All sit down at a long table, and he speaks to them, explaining his version of the Talmud. The others ask him questions, and he answers them thoughtfully, often stroking his beard, smiling sagely.

The Beth Hamedrash Hagadol Synagogue, 5877 Bartmer Ave., founded in 1877, is a center of Talmudic learning. Abraham Morgansteren and many other Talmudic scholars find daily stimulation in expounding the Talmud, first compiled nearly 1700 years ago.

It was about the end of the second century of the Christian era, when Rabbi Judah Hanasi (The Patriarch) contemporary of Marcus Aurelius and great-grandson of Rabbi Gamliel, undertook the task of selecting and editing the Oral Law, which until then had been preserved by memory. Rabbi Hanasi added much of his own thinking and that of his contemporaries.

This compilation became known as the Mishnah (Teaching) as distinguished from the Biblical collection of the Written Law usually termed Mikra (Reading).

The schools and academies would utilize the Mishnah, by building a prolonged discussion on one statement, endeavoring to discover the origin of the idea in earlier Rabbinic documents.

Rabbis then, as they still do at Beth Hamedrah Hagadol and other traditional synagogues, would point out contradictions, reconcile ingeniously irreconcilables, and prove a point by better casuistry. For three hundred years, minutes of these saintly discussions were kept.

The invasion of Huns caused anxiety that all written treasures would be lost. Rav Ashi (352-427) then devoted his entire life to editing these "minutes" which ultimately formed a kind of superstructure on the foundation of the Mishnah, and became known as the "Gemara" (Study).

Ashi labored for more than fifty years on the Gemara compilation and its revision. Disciples and rabbis continued his work for a century after his death, until what we now call "The Talmud" was put into final form.

"Avrom" Morgansteren and thousands like him devote years to the study of the Talmud, which takes seven years to read — a page a day. Morgansteren returns only at 9:00 a. m. for breakfast; after hours of study.

He has mellowed through the years. Formerly the only protection against all kinds of weather was the old derby; now he must rely on winter clothes. He used to have a sharp temper, but life and religion curbed the edges. He praises no one, expecting no praise in return. He tries to give perfection and takes it for granted in others.

After dinner he once more goes to the synagogue, where he "davens" and "minches." If someone differs on a Talmudic point, he will argue, forgetting the hot meal at home, which has been cooked and recooked.

The only other diversion is a light radio program or two for Morgansteren before he returns to his beloved Talmud.

His happiest time at home is Friday. In the late afternoon Rabbi Morgansteren takes his Shabbos clothes from the closet, dresses carefully and attends "Kabalah Shabbos." Upon his return the family assembles for the Kiddush, which he sings, pouring his heart into every word.

Rabbi Morgansteren tells of the happiest day of his life, his marriage, and his saddest when his wife passed away.

It was on Yom Kippur. He was just about to sing the Kol Nidre at the synagogue. Mother Morgansteren had suffered a heart attack that morning. In the late afternoon, when it had turned dark, she tried to leave her bed to light the candles. It was too much.

They came to Shul for him. He did not sing that evening. His children couldn't comprehend. As always, they turned to him for comfort and wisdom, and he found the right words, his own philosophy of life: "The Lord in his judgment will be correct." "Gam Zule Tovo."

UJA Conference To Open In New York Friday

The United Jewish Appeal will hold its Annual National Conference this Friday, Saturday and Sunday, in New York.

With an attendance of more than 1,200 delegates representing principal cities, the Conference will set the stage for the UJA's 1955 nationwide campaign, which will come as the seventeenth annual drive in behalf of Israel, and distressed and refugee Jews in other parts of the world.

The Conference will consider in detail the 1955 budgetary requirements of the Appeal's constituent agencies, which are the United Israel Appeal, Joint Distribution Committee and New York Association for New Americans; assess a special report by a 35-member UJA Study Mission which recently visited Europe, Israel and North Africa, adopt a financial goal for the 1955 drive, and elect officers for the forthcoming campaign.

In addition, the delegates will hear from a number of outstanding personalities, among them Bruce McDaniel, former director of the United States Foreign Operations Mission to Israel; Israel Finance Minister Levi Eshkol; Israel Ambassador to the United States Abba S. Eban, and others.

New Stamp Album

A new Israeli stamp album has arrived on the philatelic scene. All known varieties of Israel postage stamps are included. There are many specially prepared enlarged illustrations showing a variation resulting from plate changes, misprints, and errors. Every stamp is illustrated from the initial issue of May 16, 1948 to the Doctor Herzl stamp of July 1954. The album was compiled, edited and published by William C. Denhof and is called "Denhof's complete Israel Stamp Album."

Neo-Nazism Active In German Public Life

WEST GERMAN CABINET MINISTER ATTENDS ANTI-SEMITIC RALLY

Ignoring the protests of large segments of the German population, particularly German trade unions, neo-Nazis are testing their strength in election campaigns, publications and public rallies. Recently a West German cabinet minister attended an anti-Semitic rally held under the auspices of the German Party in the West Berlin Sportsplatz.

Unions Protest

Ernst Charnovsky, president of the Berlin Federation of Unions, lodged an immediate protest against this rally. The Jewish Labor Committee lauded this step.

The American Jewish Committee cabled the Berlin Jewish Community "We feel sure that men of good will of all faiths throughout Germany and the free world join with us in deploring these manifestations of Nazism which can only weaken democracy in its struggle with Communist totalitarianism." A copy of the cablegram was also sent to James B. Conant, U. S. High Commissioner to West Germany.

West Berlin police have warned that any election rally marked by anti-Semitism or neo-Nazism would be broken up by riot squads.

The announcement came amid a growing storm of protests against the outbreak of violence and anti-Semitism at a rally held by the rightist German party.

Spectators who refused to sing the first verse of "Deutschland Ueber Alles" were dragged from their seats, beaten and called "Jewish swine." Party "sergeants-at-arms" wore tight-fitting breeches, jackboots, field-gray shirts and black ties.

Mr. Henry Edward Schultz, national chairman of the ADL, declared reports that the Nazis-patterned incidents at the German Party rally and the systematic withholding of indemnification payments to victims of Nazi persecution, while former Nazis are rewarded, indicate that many Germans are again willing to utilize the old Hitler-Goebbels methods for political purpose.

Tie-Up With U. S. Bigots

Reporting on German developments, Schultz cited the existence of an organized propaganda tie-up between neo-Nazi leaders in Germany and professional anti-Semites in the United States.

"The evidence gathered in the ADL study," Mr. Schultz said, "indicates efforts by Nazi-minded elements in Germany, now held in check by the Adenauer government, to acquire support—in particular, American dollars—from nationalist movements and sympathetic ethnic groups in the United States."

The league's study noted that the low caliber of the propagandists drawn into the movement on this side of the ocean—they are mostly well-known professional anti-Semites, discredited by public opinion and acceptable only to the "lunatic fringe"—has negated any substantial results the German groups hoped to achieve in the U. S. by their propaganda. However, the ADL survey stressed that the Germans still are in an early phase of the development of their apparatus. By contrast, the League reported,

SUCCESS OF FORUM PREVIEW CAUSES REPEAT PERFORMANCE

Dr. Samuel Bukantz, chairman of the Liberal Forum, Gilbert Harris, director of the J.C.C.A. and Bernard Fischlowitz, chairman of the YMHA Board, presented an informal ad-lib preview of the Liberal Forum in a television program, "Look, Listen and Learn" on KWK-TV on Thanksgiving day which was received so well that they were asked to appear on the next show, December 14. The telethe German end of the link involves more than a score of men once high in the Hitler-era hierarchy. It named the group led by Werner Naumann, one-time associate of Josef Goebbels and regarded as the leading neo-Nazi politician in West Germany today, as the directing influence in the propaganda movement.

The anti-Semitic pamphlets and literature, the survey revealed, are transmitted on an international scale, with principal centers in the United States, Germany and Argentina.

The League identified Frederick Charles Weiss, a German alien living in New York, as the local clearing house for the traffic in neo-Nazi propaganda.

The Atoms No. 1 quintet, last year's YMHA basketball champs, moved out in front of Division 1 of the Y League with an impressive 66-54 victory over Missouri Lodge last Sunday. The Atoms held a half-time lead of 38-24 on the strength of 21 points by sharp-shooting Manny Monroe. He finished with a total of 31 with teammate Harvey Brown tallying an even 20. Ben Goldman netted 16, and Ruffy Silverstein 14 for the losers.

The other first division contest was won by the Atoms No. 2 team, 74-66, in a game that was featured by the calling of sixty fouls. Each team lost four men on fouls and the losing Rangers ended the game with only four players on the floor.

The winners led by 18 points early in the second half when Ranger high scorer Hank Holtzman started hitting consistently to cut down the big lead. By the time he fouled out early in the last period he had totaled 32 points, 19 of them coming in the second half. Bill Wilansky added 18 more for the losers. Dan Schucardt was the leading scorer for the winning Atoms with 17 points. Don Carafoll contributed 16 tallies and Bob Shelton 15, including 11 points from the free throw line.

In Division No. 2, the Diabs and Pi Lambda Phi each won their first league game of the year defeating the Seahawks and the Rebels respectively.

The Diabs staved off a last quarter Seahawk rally finishing with a 41-38 victory. Sid Kleg scored 17 points and Frank Goldman 14 for the winners. Irv Roselman and Joe Zelson got 11 each for the losers.

Harold Blatt's 19 points paced Pi Lambda Phi to a 37 to 29 win over the Rebels. The game was a close one all the way with Pi Lam coming from behind in the last period. Marty Heligman was the Rebels' high man with 11 points.

YOU and YOUR CHILD

By Abraham J. Simon, Ph. D.,
Executive Director, Jewish Child
Welfare Association of St. Louis

The training of children in proper eating habits is so simple that one marvels at the host of disorders and food fads that one encounters. With ordinary confidence in the child's hunger as an appetizer, the food which has been prepared for the meal is presented pleasantly on the assumption that it will be eaten to the extent needed to satisfy that hunger. Ordinarily, one allots twenty minutes to a meal. Less than that shortens the social side and means too rapid intake and some strain on the gastro-intestinal system. Beyond a half hour it becomes less eating, and more socializing. As time passes and the child does not eat, the adult reaction may make it a progressively more uncomfortable social situation for both. If a fair amount of stimulation, encouragement, and help doesn't lead to a maintained interest in the eating process, it is best to terminate the meal pleasantly

Variety Is Important
While it is important to serve foods which the child likes, it is wise also to plan a wide variety, including an occasional choice which may be disliked. It does not matter if food is not consumed, or if the child occasionally goes hungry. Changes in food, once it is served, really must be avoided. It is also wise to serve small portions of the undesired and larger portions of the desired foods. Eating between meals should be discouraged for children with finicky appetite. Strong yearnings for sweets after a poor meal, or unbearable cravings for food, which simply must be satisfied before a meal, are usually strong indications of some disturbance, if they are chronic. An occasional manifestation is harmless.

Habits Established Early
Bad eating habits are established in early childhood because parents are unable to follow these simple instructions. Even if they intellectually accept the above and honestly and sincerely attempt to apply them, they may find themselves unable to do so because of their own feelings and conflicts.

Do as I say, not as I do, never did work with raising children. Parents themselves often (1) react to eggs as though they are poisonous; or (2) make a big production of dieting, and dramatically avoid bread, potatoes, spaghetti and fats; or (3) simply can't stand the sight of chicken, and (4) subsist on a steady diet of steak and chops with french fried potatoes, or (5) chronically leave part of their portions on the plate; or (6) shudder at the sight of milk; or (7) habitually call before supper to advise they will be late and "get started without me." In such families children can't eat well.

Maternal Anxiety More Frequent
More frequently encountered is maternal anxiety. Mother is more involved socially with the child.

Joan Meyerhardt Wed To H. Donald Nuell At Shaare Emeth Temple

The marriage of Miss Joan Meyerhardt to H. Donald Nuell took place at Shaare Emeth Temple. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Joseph Rosenbloom and Rabbi Samuel Thurman.

The bride is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Milton H. Meyerhardt, 36 Lake Forest, Richmond Heights. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Nuell, 9211 Ladue Rd. Mr. and Mrs. H. Donald Nuell are spending their honeymoon in New Orleans and Ocean Springs, Miss. They will live at 6734 Clayton Ave.

There was also a time when the child physically nourished off the mother's body. The mother-child relationship had a biological basis. Feelings about being a good or a bad mother, of being an adequate or inferior woman may be stimulated if the newborn infant is not well formed, healthy, of adequate size or of good appetite. Being unable to breast feed adequately, or finding the breast rejected or of insufficient interest may disturb a woman deeply at the foundation of her relating to the child. In addition to being concerned about her possible inferiority or badness, she may also attribute to the child these qualities. Under the goad of such fears, she tries harder and harder to get the child to eat and soon we have problems. By the time the child is three or four, the pattern may be well established, even though the scene of the drama has moved from nursery to dining room. The mother's drive replaces the hunger drive. Pretty soon, eating is a favor to the mother rather than a pleasurable physiological function. As with all tyrants, self-confidence and strength is needed to protect oneself, and them, from themselves.

Early Help Important

If this task is too much, and one finds oneself succumbing, a little help in the early stages goes a long way. A firm understanding husband, a sensible, more experienced friend or mother, observing a good nursery school teacher supervising the luncheon meal may be all that is needed. Beyond that comes counseling, a child guidance clinic, or psycho-therapy, in order of severity of the problem.

Rabbi Morton M. Berman, Rabbi of Temple Isaiah Israel, Chicago, Illinois, will be guest speaker at the Hillel Annual Chanukah Festival, Wednesday evening, Dec. 8, at 8:15 p. m., Graham Memorial Chapel, Washington University.

The Washington University choral group of 50 student voices, conducted by Dr. Leigh Gerdine, Dean of the Department of Music, and Howard Kelsey, Washington University organist, will present the musical portion of the program.

The Hillel Chorus will sing a Chanukah folk-song. Rabbi Robert P. Jacobs will introduce the program reading the Chanukah narrative.

Fifteen students will participate in the program, which includes the traditional blessing over the Chanukah Menorah, a choral reading of a poem by Herman Hagedorn, and congregational singing. A Chanukah party will follow the program at Student Center.

Miss Nancy Elbaum, president of the Hillel, and Sondra Sandler are in charge of the program. Radine Kostman and Janet Goldenberg are in charge of the social hour. Stephen Fredman is chairman of the ushers committee, and Mike Sanders is in charge of publicity. The meeting is open to the public.
